

When the Covid-19 pandemic hit Kenya in March 2020, many citizens' lives took a downturn. Communities were forced to stay home under curfew policies that were enforced by police.

Original images found here.

The Social Justice Centers Working Group conducted surveys to ask community members about their experiences with the curfew.

The majority of the reports came from the capital Nairobi.

1,444 people were reported injured in these situations, most of them in the Mukuru, Kibera and Mathare informal settlements.

